Most citizens don't care who is responsible for the incident, or who is responsible for mitigation. We just wish someone would assume responsibility for mitigation. This would end the blame game and do what is best for our health. Not the ground, not the water, but the air that we breath needs to be priority. Tests won't make it better, apologies do nothing, the sitting on hands infuriates. I respond to emergencies for a living. They are not of my responsibility, but I do have a responsibility to mitigate the situation. So far there is nobody taking responsibility for either. There should not be a day that goes by in which ADEQ, EPA, Womack and any representative from our area does not get repeated phone calls from you or Chief Sims. They don't live with it. They are dealing with it on their timeline. It needs to be forced upon them to deal on our timeline.

Thank You,

John Fox
